

Mr. Barry Pain is the bravest man in England, though, perhaps, foolhardiness is a better term than courage to apply to his daring. In a lecture before the Pioneer Club, the leading women's organization in London, on Thursday, of the "Humor of Women," he had the temerity to tell them flatly that women had no originality, and in the highest form of humor had attained no distinction whatever. He prefaced the bitter announcement by saying that he was about to pay them the highest compliment the quite a new variety of Anarchist in the person of Matsalis, who stabbed to death the great banker Frankopolis at Patras for no other reason than that he was a banker.

Doubts were at first entertained of Matsalis's sanity, but experts pronounced his brain all right. It seems that he long brooded over the fact that some men are rich without working and live well without apparent care. This exasperated Matsalis's sensitive mind. He resolved to become rich himself, and to that end subscribed, as far as his somewhat limited means

CLEVELAND ON THE FUTURE.
His Views on Democratic Reorganization—
Still Harping on "the Greed of Wealth."
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—An evening paper here prints an account of a conversation between President Cleveland and a prominent Democratic politician, in which the President expressed at length his views upon the future of the Democratic party. The President believes, according to the story, that a blunder was made by the leaders who controlled the Con-

When the "parting of the ways" is reached, that it will be very shortly, in his opinion. The number of men who are in the Cleveland camp, he believes, is not so numerous as it is generally supposed to be. It is his estimate that in many of the Southern States, where the Cleveland men are in the majority, they are given Mr. Bryan were cast by the Democrats. He believes that the Cleveland men are exclusively by the line of "regularity."

Mr. Cleveland is said to expect that the radical Cleveland men will not only endure all the dangerous doctrines proclaimed at Chicago, but will also be in the front ranks of the organization. It is the President's idea that the Cleveland men will be the backbone of the Democratic party. He wants the reorganization to be effected along the lines laid down in the Independent's platform, and he expects to see an embolism of essential Democratic principles.

The President is satisfied that it is only to the Democrats that the country is indebted. He hopes it will be, by this straight-up process of reorganization, that the country will have an independent voters, that the people can look with any degree of hope or confidence for relief from the present situation. He believes that the country, which now menace the country are the greed of wealth and the rapacity of corporations, will be returned to the people. The party to have no prospect of the abatement of received the congratulations of many old friends yesterday upon his excellent condition of health on his ninety-seventh birthday. He took a brisk walk early in the morning, and then remained at home to meet callers.

Mr. Baldwin has voted for nineteen Presidents, and might have voted for twenty but for the fact that the only spell of illness he ever had came along at election time. He attributes his sound condition to moderation in everything, including his diet. He thinks that a great deal of his present activity is due to the fact that he has little weight to carry.

rain fell now and then, and the air was so filled with moisture that the sidewalks and the street trees were dripping. The clouds hung heavily over the roofs, blighting and thickening the small damp breeze that now and then came up from the sea. The thermometer registered about 70° in the shade, and the humidity played pranks in the nineties.

At midnight Friday the thermometer registered 62°. At 6 o'clock yesterday morning it registered 70°. At 10 o'clock it had dropped one degree, but by 11 o'clock, but by 8 it had dropped one degree. Mr. Dunn, who had been hoping that Friday's record of 70° would be surpassed, lost hope a little, for at 12 o'clock it registered 68° and at 1 o'clock, 67°. At 1:30 p. m. it began to his hand. He was doomed to disappointment. A half hour later there was some degree less heat and the thermometer began to go down slowly. It had reached 37° of being as warm as it was or could get at 10 o'clock and the thermometer had made up by humidity. There was 86 percent of the latter article at 9 o'clock and 80 percent at 2. The next article at 10:28 on record was 74°, 74° and 74°. The next article at 11:28 on record was Nov. 1, 1882, 74°, and Nov. 12 and 13, 1879, the thermometer got up.

Fire was discovered at 7:15 o'clock last evening in the printing office of David Darby, on the top floor of the five-story brick building in the rear of 128 William street. In order to reach the building, which stands in a court, the firemen had to go through a small alley from William street. It was filled with smoke, and while Chief John Castles of the Second Battalion was running through it he fell into a second-story area way. He was rendered unconscious and was taken to the hospital. The fire was extinguished by the firemen. The building is owned by Mr. James C. Berlin & Jones Envelope Company. The

Two Farmers Held for Giving a Neighbor a Drink of Cider on Sunday.
POUGHKEEPSIE Nov. 28.—Charles B. and De Witt Morey, two farmers of the town of Lagrange, are in serious straits because they did not inform themselves of the provisions of the Raines law before they gave their neighbor a drink of cider. The neighbor was thirsty and they offered him a drink of cider from a jug that they were enjoying between them. Complaint was made to Justice Fink of this infraction of the Raines law, and they were held to answer for the same. They were to be held in the $1,000 bail to appear at the Grand Jury. Justice Fink said that he was powerless to do otherwise than construe the law as endorsed by

American Rights to Rich Venezuelan
Bribe $500

The right, title, and interest of the Company in a concession obtained in Venezuela for 10,000,000 acres of land, granted by the Vene- zuela Government to Cerebrina C. Fils of Brooklyn, was sold at auction in the County Court here last May by J. W. Radcliffe, who was appointed receiver and sold through the Franklin Bank New York City, for $500,000, or about one cent to recover $1,700 for printing the bond contracts.

The purchasers were William M. Saff George M. Baxter, who bought the Concession from the company in Manoa, Florida. The land of the company lies on the Orinoco River, near its mouth, and is supposed to hold gold and silver mines and lakes.
